POSTAL STATIONERY: WHAT IS IT? WHY COLLECT IT? PART 3

by Marty Zelenietz

Pre-stamped envelopes

Pre-stamped envelopes (PSEs), also known as stamped envelopes, first appeared in Great Britain in 1841, the year following the introduction of the postage stamp and the prepaid letter sheet. A PSE is an envelope sold with an indicium printed on it, to signal that postage has been paid. As an additional security measure to prevent counterfeiting, part of the design (often a bust of a head) was embossed into the paper. Canada issued its first PSE in 1860, and the United States in 1853. Even more security was provided by using watermarked paper: Figure 10 shows a recut die of the 1903 embossed Washington 2ϕ envelope on paper with a double-lined "US", single lined "POD" & "1903" watermark, used to Toronto in 1907.

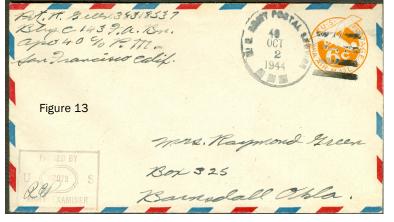

Unlike letter sheets, letter cards, and postal cards, the writer had to supply his/her own stationery to convey the message. Early collectors of PSEs cut them down and saved "cut squares" showing the indicium and a small border of blank paper. To-day, people collect PSEs as entires.

Pre-stamped envelopes offered the convenience of not having to put individual stamps on envelopes. Businesses and large mailers recognized the savings in la-

CLUB NEWS

We are delighted to note that our member John Hall has been appointed by the Royal Philatelic Society of Canada (RPSC) as the RPSC delegate for the FIP Revenue Commission. Congratulations John!!!

Congratulations also go to Jack Forbes for his trifecta at the Sarasota National Stamp Exhibition in February. His 10 frame exhibit CYPRUS - King George VI Definitives Used on Air Mail Items received the American Air Mail Society GOLD Medal; the Sarasota National Stamp Exhibition GOLD Medal; and the Postal History Society Inc. Medal for the Best Postal History Exhibit awards. Job well done!

BNAPS has informed us that BNAPEX 2020, scheduled for the Labour Day weekend here in Halifax, has officially been cancelled due to COVID-19. looks like we will host BNAPEX in 2023, the first available date.

DLO HANDSTAMP #51

DEAD LETTER OFFICE APR 15 1888

CANADA.

41x27mm double oval Proof date AUG 5 1881

Unfortunately I do not have this handstamp on a cover or piece. This item and another of a lighter strike on a pair of OX1's were recently in Eastern Auction's latest sale.

by Gary Steele

Fortunately there is a proof known with a much earlier date of 1881. A search of Dead Letter Office seals has turned up only one similar cancel. It may be possible one exists on a Dead Letter Office cover with an OX1. However, as only a handful of these OX1 covers exist the odds of one turning up are slim.

One such cover seen below has an OX1 attached to the end where it was opened with similar tear marks

WHITE'S FAMILY FUNERAL HOME by Elizabeth Sodero

Framed Page from Railway Memorabilia Collection,

White's Family Funeral Home, Kentville, NS Windsor and Annapolis Railway

White's has a collection of DAR (Dominion Atlantic Railway) memorabilia which is open to the public. This item was in my collection and is now on display at White's.

Railway buffs will find White's an interesting visit — maybe when attending the Valley Stamp Show at Port Williams (usually the last Saturday of April).

THE 1832 CHOLERA EPIDEMIC, YORK, UPPER CANADA

by Dennis Bedley

This folded letter (Figure 1 - bottom left) was mailed from York, Upper Canada, to Noel, Hants County, Nova Scotia, in December 1832, the year in which cholera first appeared in Canada. The disease had been raging in India since 1817. Canada bears the questionable distinction of having been the pathway through which cholera entered the North American continent. About 11,000 immigrants reached York and the head of the lakes during the spring and summer of 1832. Infection followed them everywhere. The disease travelled up the St. Lawrence River and spread through the courses of the inland waterways and along travel and communication routes throughout all the settlements of British North America. It stretched south of the border to New York and the New England towns and villages. The vessel The Carrick from Dublin (which most accounts identify as the ship that brought cholera to Canada) lost 45 passengers out of 145. Another vessel arrived April 28, 1832 in Grosse Isle with 20 of her 170 passengers having died at sea. These are two examples of deaths caused by the disease for immigrants coming into Canada. The epidemic of 1832 called into being the first public health the Province. (www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/ legislation in pmc/articles/PMC233409/)

Dated Markham, December 19th, 1832, and bearing a faint red "York DEC 26" circular date stamp, the letter from William Obrien to his like-named cousin opens asking after money owed to the writer. But the middle of the letter contains a brief description of the infection that tore through Upper Canada (original grammar, punctuation, and spelling used in transcription):

Dr Cousin it is about sixteen months since I received a letter from Nova Scotia I wrote six or seven of neither have I received an answer whether Miscarried or whether I am writing to the dead or whether a correspondence is useless I know not...

we have had an alarming disease here this summer the plague or what is called the Cholara it extended but a little further than York Except in some cases altho the tide of emagration was to great it carried it to different parts of Uper Canada our prints say nearly thirty thousand landed at york of which the quarter part of the deaths were Emagrants being worn out with fatigue and want together Such was the fate of a number of Drunkards and Debauchees of the Town, altho there is an achan(?) in the camps with us all have yet we have been Mercifully Delt with in our part as well as other parts of the Country it is generally Expelled throughout the Country for some time back we know not how long,...

I remain in sincerity your cousin good night bour. The US Post Office Department offered a further incentive: for a small fee, they would preprint the corner card (business name and return address) on bulk orders, as we see in Figure 11 (this 1893 Columbian issue was printed with four different dies on paper with an illustrated "Liberty/Columbus" watermark). A century later, the service was still being offered, evident from the corner card on the uprated 1991 "Love" PSE used in 1996 (Figure 12).

PSEs were valued and issued for more than just domestic-rate letter service. Figure 13 features a 1942 air mail PSE used in October 1944 from US Army Post Office 40, then located at Cape Gloucester, New Britain (New Guinea). I did my anthropological field work in the Cape Gloucester area, which is why this cover is dear to me. The free franking privilege of US active service personnel during the Second World War did not extend to airmail service: however, a concessionary rate of six (6) cents for airmail from and to servicemen did apply.

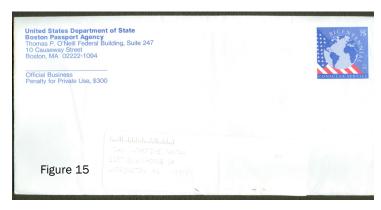

Registered pre-stamp envelopes were issued in various part of the British Empire and Commonwealth (Figure 14). Printed on heavy, card-like stock, with detailed instructions for use (and a paragraph regarding compensation on the back), they required servicing at a postal counter- you couldn't just drop them in a mail box.

PSEs were also issued for official use. In the 1800s in the US, the indicium designated the authorized government department or bureau. Although later issues were generally inscribed "Official Mail," some very specialized items still occurred, such as this scarce 1992 State Department PSE used only to mail out passports (Figure 15).

The Club Executive teleconferenced on 28 April. A decision regarding the June Annual Social was postponed until the Executive meeting in May: we don't know if the Museum will reopen by then, what the provincial rules on physical distancing will be, etc. We will explore the possibility of having the June Social in July, and also combining the Social with the AGM in September. We discussed ways of keeping Club members in touch with each other during these "distancing" times. Stay safe, and stay healthy.

Modern PSEs are often issued to commemorate a specific event, and receive colourful illustrations tied to the theme.

Australia remains a prolific issuer of illustrated commemorative PSEs, such as this 1981 International Botanical Congress domestic-rate piece (Figure 16). Originally sent on 24 August, the cover was returned for additional postage, the postage due message covered over by the additional stamp, and re-entered the mail stream on the 27th.

Part 4 of this series will wrap up the "What is it?" question with a look at airletters/aerogrammes and other stationery forms.

The letter goes on to discuss farm produce price and the necessity for moral rectitude.

This letter serves to remind us of the toll infectious diseases can take on our society.

If anyone can help decipher the rate of this letter, or the indistinct black postmark on the lower right corner, please get in touch with Dennis Bedley at: x.ero.123@hotmail.com.
